

Award-winning journalist Liliana Soto is an Assistant Professor of Practice at the University of Arizona School of Journalism, an assistant director for the school's Bilingual Journalism Program and a freelance bilingual multimedia journalist.

She has 10 years of experience in broadcast news in English and Spanish with a specialization in bilingual investigative journalism, immigration, the U.S.-Mexico border, Latino issues, marginalized communities, and Mexican-centric Latin Culture.

Liliana was one of the founders of the Central Texas chapter for the National Association of Hispanic Journalists.

She graduated with a bachelor's degree from The Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and Mass Communication at ASU.

Prior to joining academia, Liliana was an investigative/enterprise news reporter and a news leader for ABC15 Arizona in Phoenix.

She was the station's first multimedia journalist to report in both English and Spanish. Her unceasing advocacy for the Spanish speakers includes creating a Spanish language section of ABC15's website with most of her English stories translated into Spanish. Prior to joining ABC15, Liliana was a multimedia journalist and weekend news anchor for Univision in Phoenix, Arizona and Austin, Texas. As a reporter for Univision, Liliana was also assigned to news Correspondent for the Texas regional newscast "Primera Edición" & "Conexión Texas" based in Houston. Her journalistic experience also includes working as a Communications Specialist for Mayo Clinic, a recognized world leader in patient care, education, and research and as a freelance journalist for NBC Universal Telemundo Network.

Liliana is a proud mother and strives to motivate young mothers to pursue a higher education.